Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Saturday 24 Jul 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Becoming very warm and sunny but east coast cooler, cloudier.

Today:
Low cloud and mist across central and eastern parts burning back to the coast where it may linger through the day. Otherwise another very warm day with long spells of unbroken sunshine and mainly light winds.

Tonight:
A fine evening for most with some late sunshine but low cloud in east spreading inland overnight with patchy drizzle possible. Western areas dry and largely clear.

Sunday:
Low cloud, mist and patchy drizzle becoming confined to eastern coasts through the morning to leave, especially in west, another dry, very warm and largely sunny day.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Cooler and more unsettled with showers or longer spells of rain, these heavy and perhaps thundery at times.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.